

Midsummer is the golden age of the one being reflected in the vivid colors of the other. Midsummer is the splendid maturity and perfection of the year and the fullness and beauty of the season are matched by the sun-colored blossoms of the flowers that are shaped like helmets, and present a brave showing in great flame-like masses, against the silvery green of their leaf shields.

The parlor of the Woman's Exchange are now brightened by nasturtiums sent over daily from their garden beds in Forest Hill Park.

Midsummer hostesses need not trouble themselves about the choice of selection in flowers, for nothing is more graceful or appropriate for dining-room, parlors or tea table, than bowls or vases of nasturtiums, surrounded by their natural greenery.

The colors harmonize with almost any surroundings and belong naturally to July. The flowers arrange themselves, falling into an artistic grouping, their effort or skill could improve. But it is that nature is wise in her generation, and provides for each season as it arrives. Therefore, the nasturtiums need no encomiums, as the visitor to the Exchange will be quite willing to admit.

Friends in Richmond who have been concerned over the serious illness of Mrs. Barton H. Wile's little daughter in Italy, will be glad to hear of her improvement and convalescence after fever. Miss Bell Perkins, who went abroad in May, decided not to accompany Mrs. Henry Stuart in a trip that this latter has taken into Italy. Miss Perkins elected instead, to remain in Paris, where she has spent a part of her time pleasantly and profitably with Mr. Fletcher and Miss Fletcher in visiting art galleries and in making sketching excursions into the country around Paris.

Miss Elizabeth Cameron, sister of Mr. Alexander Cameron, who has her home in Paris, has entertained Miss Perkins at teas and receptions in a most delightful way. Miss Perkins was booked to sail about the 1st, and is expected home about the 1st of August.

MORVEN PARK, A PRETTY VIRGINIA MANSION.

Built by the late Governor Swan, of Maryland, Morven Park, situated two miles east of Leesburg, is a fine example of Virginia Colonial architecture. The mansion and the splendid estate belonging with it were purchased some years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Westwoodland Davis, of New York City. The house, the grounds around it, and the walled garden were thoroughly renovated by the present owners, who have filled their halls and rooms with art treasures gathered from all parts of the world during their extended travels.

At Madeira Isles. Mr. and Mrs. R. Stanley Robertson, of "Forest Hill," have received a letter from their son, Midshipman R. S. Robertson, Jr., announcing his safe arrival in the Madeira Isles.

Young Robertson experienced a rough trip across the time for which embraced about two weeks. There were two days of high winds and one week of rain. However, he says that he has been fully repaid for his sea sickness, as he is now at a delightful place, with a fine climate.

Midshipman Robertson stood high in his class at Annapolis, and embarked on the U. S. cruiser "Des Moines" for the East on June 18th.

If all goes well, he will go to Lisbon, Gibraltar and the Azores, returning to America some time in August.

At the time when designs for the Jefferson Davis memorial were submitted in competition, that shown by Mr. Couper was the chosen of Mr. N. Y. Randolph, who advocated its adoption. Many Camping Parties.

Christian and brother, and Mr. Hugh Harwood, of this city, are spending only with Mr. Fletcher and Miss Fletcher in visiting art galleries and in making sketching excursions into the country around Paris.

The Horse Show period is also in full swing, and throughout upper Virginia the pleasures and triumphs of the ring are carrying everything before them. Horse shows and tournaments and balls are keeping afoot, outside of seashore and mountain resort circles, very gay indeed.

The news that Miss Betty Burwell Booker is again in the United States, and that she is going to give a concert at the Woman's Club, in this city, next autumn, with Mr. Francis Hartford, of London, opens up a pleasant prospect for Richmond society, in general, and lovers of music in especial. And the fact that the autumn season will open early and be unprecedently gay.
